THE LOS BANOS PRISON CAMP RAID - THE PHILIPPINES 1945

In the dying days of the war as the American forces pushed through the Japanese defenses on the Philippines, one of the most daring raids of World War II was masterfully executed. On the southwest shore of Laguna de Bay stood the Los Banos Internment Camp. Held within its barbed-wire barricades were 2,147 starving American and Allied men, women, and children. A plan was hatched to free the captives although they were heavily guarded by 250 Japanese guards with several hundred more scattered in the surrounding area. Only 130 Paratroopers could be spared from the desperate fighting around Manila for the operation. It was a stunning success in the face of overwhelming odds. Scheduled to ship in September 2010.

THE THOMPSON SUBMACHINE GUN: FROM PROHIBITION CHICAGO TO WORLD WAR II

There are certain firearms that developed an almost iconic status during the 20th century, and the Thompson submachine gun, or "Tommy Gun", is undoubtedly one of these. Developed during the dying days of World War I as a 'one-man, hand-held machine gun', the M1921 Thompson was enthusiastically used by the criminal fraternity working in Chicago and New York during the prohibition years of the 1920s. With the entry of the US into World War II, the Thompson submachine gun began a second career as part of the US Army. Moreover, it increasingly became the weapon of choice for the small band of British commandos as they conducted a number of daring raids against the heart of occupied Europe. Scheduled to ship in September 2010.
